THE HISTORY

The Ferragamo Group

The origins of the Portrait Hotels brand are rooted in the heritage and values of the Ferragamo Group, a conglomerate internationally recognized for excellence in craftsmanship, creativity, and Italian style.

The group's history begins with Salvatore Ferragamo, who emigrated to the United States in 1915 and achieved international success as "the shoemaker of the stars." After his return to Italy in 1927 he chose Florence as the place to live and work due to its unparalleled artisanal tradition. This decision laid the cultural and philosophical foundations of the Ferragamo approach to luxury rooted in craftsmanship, beauty, and love for place.

Over time, these values were transmitted to generations of the Ferragamo family and gradually extended beyond fashion and evolving into a lifestyle vision that included hospitality.

The Creation of Lungarno Collection

From this heritage, the Ferragamo family developed Lungarno Collection, a hotel collection born in Florence and conceived as an expression of refined Italian hospitality. Lungarno Collection hotels are characterized by a strong Florentine identity, artisanal attention to detail, and an emotional connection between guests and their surroundings.

Hospitality within Lungarno Collection is not standardized; rather, it is designed as a "made-by-hand" experience, inspired by the culture of welcoming traditionally associated with Tuscan households. The collection reflects a vision of luxury based on discretion, coherence, and continuity and personalization rather than ostentation.

The Emergence of Portrait as a Distinct Brand

As Lungarno Collection matured, the Ferragamo family recognized the need to develop a hospitality concept able of adapting to different urban contexts while preserving a strong identity. Was this strategic reflection that led to the creation of the Portrait brand.

With the objective of developing a highly personalized city-centric luxury hotel concept, while Lungarno Collection is represented by Florence and expresses a strong sense of artisanal and cultural continuity, Portrait represents a more contemporary and urban interpretation of luxury, designed to be replicated in iconic international cities without losing identity.

The name Portrait reflects the core idea behind the brand: the meeting between the portrait of the city and the portrait of the guest. Each hotel is designed as a bespoke environment in which the individuality, expectations, and lifestyle of the guest are mirrored by the character, culture, and rhythm of the host city.

Salvatore Ferragamo

Salvatore Ferragamo founded the group and established its values of craftsmanship and Italian excellence.

Portrait Roma

The first Portrait hotel opened in Rome, overlooking Piazza di Spagna, at the heart of Via Condotti. This location established the brand's defining characteristics like limited number of suites, residential atmosphere, discreet and highly customized service, immediate proximity to cultural and luxury landmarks. Portrait Roma set the foundation for a hospitality model inspired by the elegance of a private Roman residence rather than a conventional hotel.

Portrait Firenze

Following the Roman experience, Portrait Firenze reinforced the brand's identity. Located beside Ponte Vecchio and overlooking the Arno, the hotel represents the dialogue between heritage and contemporary living.

Here, the Portrait philosophy fully matured where the city's artistic legacy becomes part of everyday life, while service adapts to the guest's habits, schedules, and preferences.

Leonardo Ferragamo

Leonardo Ferragamo led the development of the group's hospitality division and the creation of Portrait Hotels.

Portrait Milano

The most recent and conceptually ambitious evolution of the brand is Portrait Milano, located within the former Archiepiscopal Seminary in Corso Venezia, at the center of Milan's fashion district.

Portrait Milano represents a new chapter in the brand's history: a larger urban scale, a strong relationship with the city's cultural and creative ecosystem, the transformation of a historic complex into a contemporary social space open to the city. The internal courtyard acts as an urban piazza, reinforcing the idea of hospitality as a shared cultural experience rather than a closed luxury enclave.

Michele Bönan

Michele Bönan defined the aesthetic identity of Portrait Hotels through his tailored and refined architectural vision.

THE MISSION

Portrait's mission is to redefine the concept of luxury hospitality through a deeply personalized and tailor-made approach. Rather than offering a standardized five-star experience, Portrait aims to create stays that truly reflect the personality, lifestyle, and aspirations of each individual guest. The very name "Portrait" represents this philosophy: every stay is conceived as a personal portrait, shaped around the guest's tastes, expectations, and desires.

The brand focuses on anticipating needs with discretion and elegance, delivering refined service inspired by Italian craftsmanship and sartorial tradition. Every detail, from the design of the suites to curated experiences in the city, is carefully orchestrated to ensure that guests feel understood, valued, and uniquely represented.

In essence, Portrait's mission is to transform hospitality into a bespoke experience where luxury becomes intimate, authentic, and emotionally meaningful.

THE VISION

Portrait's vision is to become an international benchmark for personalized luxury hospitality rooted in Italian culture and style. The brand aspires to represent a sophisticated model of hospitality that unify timeless elegance, contemporary lifestyle, and a very deep connection with the local context.

Each Portrait property is designed not only as a place to stay, but as an immersive gateway into the soul of the city. Florence, Rome, and Milan are not simply locations, they are cultural stages where art, fashion, history, and modern creativity converge. Portrait envisions a form of hospitality where the identity of the guest meets the identity of the city, creating a dialogue between personal experience and cultural heritage. In the long term, the brand aims to be globally recognized for its ability to deliver an exclusive and warm form of luxury; one that is refined but never ostentatious, sophisticated yet deeply human.

THE VALUES

The Portrait brand is guided by various core values that reflect both its belonging to the Lungarno Collection and the heritage of the Ferragamo family. Personalization is the foundation of the brand: every experience is tailor-made, designed around the individual guest. Authentic

Italian hospitality defines the service style, expressed through warmth, elegance, discretion, and attention to detail. Connection to the destination ensures that each hotel reflects the cultural identity of its city. Excellence and luxury characterize every aspect of comfort and service, privileging quality over ostentation. Human relationships are central, focusing on empathy, anticipation, and genuine guest connection. Sustainability and responsibility complete the brand's value system, promoting respect for people and the environment.

The financial data analyzed refer to Lungarno Collection, the hospitality group owned by the Ferragamo family, which includes Portrait Milano. As financial data for Portrait Hotels are not publicly disclosed, Lungarno Collection figures have been used as a proxy to reflect the group's overall economic performance and investment capacity.

Consequently, it can be concluded that Portrait Milano is more than just a hotel; this brand represents a perfect destination with a blend of hospitality and a particular lifestyle.

Comparison with other companies:
 Four Seasons - an example of traditional and classical luxury with poor destination character
 Armani Hotel Milano - destination closely related to its brand
 Bulgari, Mandarin - contemporary and branded luxury

However, Portrait Milano differs from other brands by the following criteria:
 It is still focused on classical luxury and the luxury is combined with a social character (the Piazza).

Product offer of Portrait Milano is a 5-star luxury hotel located in the heart of Milan's Quadrilatero della Moda, renovated in 2022 by the Ferragamo family. More than just a hotel, it is designed as a living destination, centered around a semi-private piazza that blends hospitality, retail, and lifestyle into a vibrant yet intimate atmosphere.

The property features 73 rooms and suites designed by Michele Bönan, reflecting refined Italian aesthetics, high-quality materials, and a strong focus on comfort and personalization. Technology is seamlessly integrated, enhancing the experience without being intrusive.

The food & beverage offering is diverse and upscale: an Italian restaurant set in a garden, Beffbar with a premium and international approach, and Rumore, a 1920s-inspired cocktail bar for evening socializing.

Wellness is a key pillar, with the Longevity Spa combining luxury and innovation through biohacking and anti-aging treatments, alongside a pool, fitness center, and relaxation areas.

The hotel also caters to business and events, with flexible spaces hosting up to 100 guests, ideal for meetings, fashion events, and private occasions.

The target audience is international and diverse: luxury travelers, business clients, families, and Milan-based professionals seeking a refined yet accessible luxury experience. Its key strength lies in its positioning as a "hidden enclave" in the city center, where Ferragamo-style persona

Marketing mix

-lized hospitality meets a strong focus on wellness and experiential living.

Portrait Milano adopts an ultra-luxury pricing strategy, positioning itself at the top of the market with rates ranging from around €1,000 to €14,000 per night. Prices are dynamic and vary based on seasonality, demand, and major events such as Milan Fashion Week, reinforcing both exclusivity and market responsiveness.

Pricing is a key element of the brand's positioning: it communicates rarity and transforms the stay into a curated, high-value experience rather than simple accommodation.

Guests can personalize their stay through premium packages, including wellness programs at the Longevity Spa, gourmet dining, and tailored services such as transfers and butler support. At the same time, direct booking advantages and a Best Rate Guarantee help strengthen loyalty while ensuring a seamless and highly personalized luxury experience.

Place strategy of Portrait Milano adopts an omnichannel distribution strategy that balances exclusivity with global visibility, while maintaining its ultra-luxury positioning. The hotel prioritizes direct bookings through its official Lungarno website, supported by SEO and email marketing, offering exclusive perks, loyalty benefits, and a Best Rate Guarantee. This approach allows for greater personalization and stronger client relationships. At the same time, it leverages major OTAs like Booking.com and Expedia for international reach, and connects to GDS systems such as Amadeus, Sabre, and Worldspan to serve corporate clients and travel agents. For luxury leisure travelers, Portrait Milano is part of curated networks like Leading Hotels of the World and American Express Fine Hotels & Resorts, ensuring access to high-end, experience-driven clientele. Overall, this mix of direct, digital, corporate, and luxury channels allows the hotel to maximize visibility while preserving control over the brand experience.

Promotion strategy of Portrait Milano's is mainly focused on digital and PR, combining a strong online presence with high-end brand storytelling.

A 24/7 WhatsApp concierge enhances direct communication and loyalty, particularly for business and younger clients.

Customer feedback is very positive, especially for service, design, and breakfast, with only minor criticisms related to high prices and occasional crowding.

TO WAS

heritage and architectural uniqueness

The location in the Quadrilatero della Moda in Milan and the concept of the Piazza, Portrait Milano functions also as a curated urban destination, attracting both guests and local Milanese.

Integrated service ecosystem
Portrait Milano offers a complete ecosystem including hospitality, dining, wellness, retail, and event

Strong F&B positioning
The restaurant concept enhances the brand identity through authentic Italian cuisine and convivial experiences, transforming dining into a key element of the overall Portrait experience.

THREATS

Strong competition in Milan's luxury hospitality market
Portrait Milano faces intense competition from established global luxury hotel brands with greater scale, visibility, and resources.

Risk of overexposure and loss of exclusivity
Excessive openness or public activation of the space may compromise the brand's core values of privacy, discretion, and intimacy.

Dependence on international travel demand
Reliance on key international markets exposes the hotel to geopolitical and economic fluctuations affecting luxury travel flows.

Increasing expectations in wellness and dining
As key pillars of the offering, F&B and wellness must continuously evolve to remain competitive and meet rising luxury standards.

WEAKNESSES

Lower brand awareness internationally
Despite a strong identity, the brand remains less recognizable than major luxury hospitality players, reducing its immediate appeal among broader international audiences.

Tension between openness and exclusivity
The concept of an open Piazza and public-facing spaces may conflict with the brand's core values of privacy, discretion, and intimacy, creating a delicate balance to maintain.

Strong dependence on location and architecture
The hotel's identity is deeply tied to its unique physical setting, making the concept difficult to replicate and limiting strategic flexibility for future developments.

OPPORTUNITIES

Strengthening of wellness and longevity positioning
The growing focus on wellbeing offers the opportunity to further develop the current offering, positioning the hotel as a leading destination in the wellness segment.

Strategic partnerships
Opportunity to make collaborations with luxury brands more continuous and integrated, increasing distinctiveness and overall impact.

Evolution of experiential luxury
Opportunity to further evolve existing offerings by transforming them into distinctive and recognizable formats, capable of strengthening brand identity and increasing differentiation from competitors.

Diversification of services
Opportunity to introduce new complementary services that enrich the guest experience, increasing engagement and perceived exclusivity.

In conclusion from the analysis, it emerges that Portrait Milano occupies a high position within the luxury hospitality market. Rather than competing on scale or global visibility, the hotel builds its strength around a more specific idea of luxury based on experience, personalization, and cultural connection.

What differentiates Portrait Milano is its ability to combine traditional Italian elegance with a modern, lifestyle-oriented approach. Compared to competitors like Four Seasons or Armani Hotel, it offers a more intimate and personal experience, where the guest becomes part of a curated and meaningful environment.

A key element of this positioning is the Piazza, which transforms the hotel into a living space within the city, attracting international travelers and a sophisticated local clientele. This reinforces its personality as a destination, fully integrated into Milan's social and cultural context.

At the same time, its boutique scale represents both a strength and a limitation: it enhances exclusivity and personalization, but reduces global reach. In addition, the hotel must carefully balance openness and privacy to preserve its core values of discretion and intimacy.

Overall, Portrait Milano does not aim to be the largest player, but one of the most authentic and experiential. Its future success will depend on its ability to strengthen this identity while maintaining exclusivity and building long-term relationships with its clients.

PORTRAIT HOTEL MILANO

Discover what your Portrait can create

Portrait Scent Atelier

THE IDEA

At Portrait Milano, luxury is rooted in intimacy and personalization, yet one powerful sense remains underexplored: smell.

Portrait Scent Atelier transforms each stay into a lasting, invisible signature. Through a guided, ritual-like experience, guests create a bespoke fragrance that captures their identity, mood, and memories.

More than a perfume, it becomes a personal “portrait”—a scent that extends the experience beyond the hotel, turning a place into a feeling that can be carried over time.

The objective is to deepen emotional connection, strengthen experiential positioning, and create long-term value through memory, loyalty, and new revenue opportunities.

target

The target of the Portrait Scent Atelier is an exclusive clientele, perfectly aligned with the positioning of Portrait Milano. It consists of individuals with high spending power, accustomed to luxury and, above all, to personalization, who are not simply looking for a product but for a meaningful experience.

It includes both international travelers staying at the hotel and sophisticated local clients, often passionate about niche perfumery and high-end lifestyle. In both cases, what unites them is the desire for something truly unique that reflects their identity.

They are not particularly price-sensitive, but highly attentive to value: the fragrance becomes a way to express themselves and to transform a moment into a personal and lasting memory.

Magna Pars – The Hotel à Parfum / LabSolue represents the strongest benchmark within the Milanese context. The hotel is entirely built around scent, with 68 suites linked to olfactory families, an olfactory check-in, immersive journeys and a lab where guests can explore or select the fragrance of their suite. The difference with Portrait Scent Atelier is that Magna Pars invites guests into its own olfactory universe, while Portrait is designed to place the guest within their own personal universe, with the brand acting as a guide rather than the sole author.

*Magna Pars l'Hotel
a parfum*

Guerlain

Maison 21G

Maison 21G in partnership with Raffles Sentosa Singapore represents the closest benchmark to the concept. The brand has introduced an Atelier de Création within the hotel where guests co-create a personal fragrance inspired by the spirit of Raffles. The experience then extends throughout the property, from spa oils to scented amenities and objects.

However, the key difference lies in the approach because while their system remains strongly hotel-signature-led, Portrait Scent Atelier is designed to be entirely guest-portrait-led, placing the individual at the center of the experience.

Portrait Scent Atelier sits at the intersection of personalization and immersive experience. Instead of simply delivering a product or a service, it invites guests into a personal journey where they can create a scent that reflects who they are. What they take away is not just a fragrance, but a memory they can carry with them.

*Four Seasons,
Firenze*

Guerlain stands at the pinnacle of bespoke haute perfumery. Its model is built around a personal encounter with the client, the creation of a unique formula, exclusive ownership of the composition, and a strong focus on the final object. It is a direct competitor in terms of tailored olfactory luxury, but not in the context of hospitality: it lacks the emotional framework of a stay and the organic connection to a lived place.

Four Seasons Hotel Firenze offers a “create your own perfume” experience, guided by expert hands, where guests leave with a personalized fragrance and the memory of the moment. It competes on a similar psychological promise like creativity, exclusivity, and an emotional souvenir but it is not built as a proprietary brand platform or a permanent identity element of the hotel.

Product

The Portrait Scent Atelier is structured as a layered experience.

At its core is the Scent Consultation for in-house guests, an intimate and curated experience included in the stay. The journey begins with a personalized invitation letter placed in the room upon arrival, elegantly introducing the Atelier and inviting the guest to discover a private sensory experience. Through a guided olfactory journey, each guest creates a bespoke fragrance that reflects their identity, mood, and memories. The experience concludes with a complimentary 10 ml bottle, either presented directly in the Atelier or elegantly delivered to the room, both in a refined signature box.

The same experience is also available to external guests by reservation.

Alongside the personalized experience, the Atelier introduces a Milano-inspired fragrance collection, a curated line that interprets the essence of the city through scent. Each fragrance embodies a different atmosphere or neighborhood, such as Brera, Navigli, or Montenapoleone offering guests a refined and transportable memory of Milan.

Completing the architecture is the Portrait Signature Scent, the olfactory identity of the brand. Together, these elements create a cohesive and evolving ecosystem, where scent becomes a powerful extension of the Portrait experience.

The concept also opens opportunities for further development across other areas, such as food and cocktails, where fragrances can inspire signature drinks and dishes.

For the creation of the city collection and Portrait signature scent I would entrust the project to perfumer Cristiano Canali, a renowned Italian perfumer known for his refined and contemporary approach to fragrance creation. Currently, he collaborates with the perfume house MANE.

Cristiano

Creates refined, emotional, and contemporary fragrances.

His work is distinguished by a strong balance between creativity and technical precision, with a focus on translating emotions, memories, and identities into scent, perfectly aligned with Portrait's vision.

Engaging a name like Cristiano Canali is not just a technical choice, but a marketing one. His signature immediately adds credibility among collectors and international distributors.

Price

The pricing strategy of the Portrait Scent Atelier is built on a dual structure, separating experience and product.

The Scent Consultation for in-house guests remains included in the stay, offering a privileged entry point into the Atelier.

For external clients, the experience is positioned as a premium service: €1000. The 10 ml fragrance can either be included or partially redeemed within the experience, maintaining a balance between accessibility and exclusivity.

Fragrances are priced independently from the consultation and follow a high-end structure, reflecting craftsmanship, personalization, and the involvement of a professional perfumer:

Bespoke Fragrance

30 ml → €320–380

50 ml → €480–620

100 ml → €780–950

The same pricing applies for reorders, reinforcing consistency and long-term value.

The Milano Collection and the Portrait Signature Scent are positioned slightly below bespoke creations, offering a more accessible entry point while maintaining a premium perception:

30 ml → €220–260

50 ml → €320–380

100 ml → €480–580

Pre Launch

The strategy I would use for the launch of the new service, Portrait Scent Atelier, is to publish Stories that partially tease the arrival of the new offering, sparking curiosity.

A series of Stories featuring Portrait's signature color palette, with a keyhole placed at the center, revealing glimpses of selected fragrances from the Milano collection. Beneath, short phrases hint at the deeper meaning of the Atelier experience.

Launch

The best way to introduce the new service is through an exclusive launch event, ideally held during Fashion Week. The event should be intimate, with guests carefully selected.

During the event, guests are guided through the atelier along a sensory journey that begins in the colonnaded portico. A curated aperitivo is included, featuring cocktails inspired by the olfactory notes of the Milano collection.

Post Launch

I have identified several pillars used in Portrait Milano's social media strategy, including Architecture, Lifestyle, Food, Events, Milano, and Shops. These are alternated in a fairly balanced way, with a posting frequency of approximately every two days, and often daily.

The same applies to Stories, which are used consistently. The brand is active on both Instagram and Facebook, using the single-post function to publish the same content simultaneously on both platforms.

They select high-quality photos and videos, characterized by low exposure and warm, vibrant colors.

The strategy consists of introducing a new pillar, "Scent Dimension," to be featured with a frequency of one post every 10 days and related stories every 5 days.

Content may include the atelier infused with fragrance, breakfasts described through olfactory notes, and guests experiencing the atelier.

Conclusions

Portrait Scent Atelier represents a natural evolution of Portrait Milano's identity. It is conceived as a new experiential layer capable of translating the brand's core values — personalization, intimacy, and emotional luxury — through the sense of smell.

From the analysis, it emerged that Portrait already holds a strong positioning within the luxury hospitality market, and the Atelier serves to further reinforce this positioning by introducing a sense that is still underexplored yet highly impactful: olfaction.

Through the creation of a personalized fragrance, the guest lives a true ritual that extends the memory of the stay. In this way, scent becomes a new form of storytelling.

From a strategic perspective, the project generates value on three levels: it enhances the guest experience, differentiates Portrait Milano from its competitors, and opens new revenue opportunities through bespoke fragrances, the Milano collection, and the brand's signature scent.

From an economic standpoint, the project requires a significant yet controlled initial investment, mainly related to the Atelier, the perfumer, packaging, and launch activities. The projections show that profitability is not immediate, but the model becomes sustainable over time, with break-even expected between Year 2 and Year 3.

Overall, Portrait Scent Atelier is perfectly aligned with the brand's DNA and reinforces its ambition to offer a luxury experience that is not only lived or observed, but remembered.
