VISION, MISSION, VALUES

Dolce & Gabbana's strategic direction is anchored in a robust and clearly articulated framework of vision, mission, and values that collectively define its unique position within the global luxury beauty market. Understanding these pillars is essential to appreciating the logic and coherence of the Christmas proposal, as every strategic decision flows directly from them.

The brand's Vision is to embody the Italian luxury lifestyle in its most authentic and evocative form. At the heart of this vision lies a profound attachment to Sicilian heritage and Mediterranean sensuality, which serve not merely as aesthetic references but as the very soul of the brand's identity. This vision is realized through emotional storytelling — the ability to transform a product into a narrative, a ritual, a memory — and through an unwavering commitment to craftsmanship and excellence that permeates every aspect of the brand's output, from the fragrance formulas to the packaging design.

The Mission translates this vision into a concrete strategic orientation: Dolce &

Gabbana aspires to be a global expression of Italian luxury, one that does not merely export a product but an entire lifestyle and cultural universe. To achieve this, the brand pursues a deliberate balance between heritage and innovation, ensuring that its deep roots in Italian tradition are never at the expense of modernity and relevance. Central to this mission is the creation of immersive brand experiences that go beyond the transactional dimension of retail, inviting consumers into an aspirational Mediterranean world that is warm, sensual, and celebratory.

The core Values of Dolce & Gabbana — Italian heritage, sensuality, creativity, craftsmanship, family and tradition, self-expression, and luxury lifestyle — are not abstract principles but are actively translated into what the brand defines as its "Beauty Codes."

These codes constitute the visual, emotional, and narrative language through which the brand communicates with its audience. Sicilian Heritage is rendered visible through Majolica patterns and Mediterranean colors, which create a strong and immediately recognizable visual identity. Mediterranean Sensuality infuses the brand's communication with warmth, femininity, and an emotional charge connected to passion, elegance, and self-expression. Devotion Iconography — most powerfully embodied by the Sacred Heart motif — elevates the act of gifting to a symbolic gesture of love, intimacy, and emotional connection. Luxury Craftsmanship is expressed through gold details, refined packaging, and collectible objects that reinforce the perception of exclusivity and excellence. Emotional Storytelling reframes the fragrance not as

global trends edition

The global luxury beauty market continues to grow, although with signs of moderation: following an average annual growth of 7% between 2022 and 2024, the sector is expected to grow by approximately 5% annually until 2030. In a landscape marked by market saturation and economic uncertainty, consumers are becoming increasingly selective and value-oriented. According to McKinsey, product quality remains the primary purchasing driver. As a result, the premium beauty sector is increasingly focusing on high-potential emerging markets such as India, the Middle East, and Asia.

Current trends show that wellness and beauty are becoming deeply integrated into the daily routines of younger generations. Millennials and Gen Z are driving demand in categories such as skincare and wellbeing, reshaping the industry toward more holistic and experience-driven consumption patterns.

At the same time, luxury gifting is gaining strategic importance. Beauty gift sets have become symbols of indulgence, care, and discovery. BeautyMatter highlights that festive beauty sets “have solidified their role as an indulgent yet practical gift, both for others and for oneself.” In parallel, self-gifting is becoming an increasingly significant phenomenon: modern consumers curate their lifestyles through premium beauty products, placing strong emphasis on aesthetic appeal, emotional resonance, and the product’s social visibility.

Overall, luxury beauty attracts sophisticated and highly informed consumers who seek complete brand experiences — from unboxing moments to online communities — while rewarding brands that demonstrate consistency in quality, authenticity, and sustainability values.

D & G Beauty

Dolce & Gabbana Beauty is currently in a phase of strategic transformation following the direct internal management of its beauty division. The brand positions itself around highly emotional and personalized luxury, deeply rooted in Italian culture, Mediterranean aesthetics, and fashion heritage. Its objective is not only to sell beauty products, but to create “beauty moments inspired by Italy,” transforming fragrance and makeup into lifestyle experiences.

The brand's identity is built on strong contrasts: tradition and innovation, sensuality and sophistication, luxury and authenticity. Dolce & Gabbana Beauty communicates a vision of Italian beauty that is warm, expressive, glamorous, and emotionally engaging. Compared to competitors such as Chanel or Armani, the brand adopts a more vibrant and theatrical approach, strongly connected to Sicilian culture, family warmth, craftsmanship, and Mediterranean storytelling.

Its most iconic products include Light Blue, The One, Devotion, and the ultra-premium Velvet Collection. Fragrance remains the core category of the brand, with perfumes positioned not only as products but as emotional symbols connected to memories, seduction, and Italian lifestyle. Devotion, in particular, represents a new strategic pillar for the brand thanks to its strong visual identity and emotional storytelling centered around the “Sacred Heart” symbol.

From a communication perspective, Dolce & Gabbana Beauty strongly targets Millennials and Gen Z through platforms such as TikTok and Instagram. The brand combines high-fashion imagery with lifestyle-driven content and collaborates with international celebrities and ambassadors including Madonna and Moon Ga-young. Its digital strategy focuses on creating visually impactful and emotionally engaging campaigns that reinforce the brand's Italian DNA.

During the Holiday Season, Dolce & Gabbana Beauty positions gifting as a magical and emotional experience. Campaigns such as “Where Wonder Begins” emphasize warmth, fantasy, and Sicilian family traditions. The brand differentiates itself through highly decorative coffrets, gold packaging, and visual references to Sicilian art and craftsmanship, transforming gift sets into collectible luxury objects.

Compared to competitors, Dolce & Gabbana Beauty stands out for its strong Mediterranean identity, emotional storytelling, and maximalist aesthetic. Its closest competitors are brands such as Gucci, Versace, Valentino, and Armani, while Dior represents the aspirational benchmark in terms of scale, innovation, and global beauty leadership.

DOLCE & GABBANA

DIOR

Beauty

Dior is positioned as one of the strongest and most established players in the global luxury beauty market. The brand combines haute couture heritage with innovation, creating a multisensory luxury universe where fashion, fragrance, makeup, and technology coexist. Dior's strategy revolves around elevating beauty into an artistic and emotional experience, especially during key moments such as the Holiday Season.

Its iconic products include Sauvage, Miss Dior, J'adore, and Dior Addict Lip Glow, all considered pillars of modern luxury beauty. Fragrance plays a central role in Dior's gifting strategy, making the brand one of the most successful examples of fashion-to-fragrance extension.

From a communication perspective, Dior adopts a strong omnichannel strategy, combining physical experiences, digital storytelling, immersive pop-ups, and AR technologies. The brand collaborates with global celebrities such as Jisoo, Anya Taylor-Joy, and Rihanna to reinforce desirability among Millennials and Gen Z.

During Christmas, Dior transforms gifting into an artistic ritual through campaigns such as "The Art of Gifting." The brand creates ultra-luxury advent calendars, artistic packaging collaborations — including designs inspired by Pietro Ruffo — and highly collectible gift sets that reinforce exclusivity and craftsmanship.

Overall, Dior represents the aspirational benchmark for Dolce & Gabbana Beauty because of its ability to merge heritage, innovation, emotional storytelling, and luxury gifting performance.

CHANEL

Beauty

Chanel embodies timeless prestige and understated elegance. Its positioning is built around French sophistication, heritage, and discreet modernity, making Chanel one of the strongest ultra-luxury beauty powerhouses globally.

The brand's most iconic products include Chanel N°5, Bleu de Chanel, Coco Mademoiselle, and Sublimage. These fragrances are positioned as timeless luxury gifts, particularly powerful during the Holiday Season thanks to their strong emotional and cultural recognition.

Chanel's communication strategy focuses on authenticity, heritage storytelling, and timeless modernity. The brand collaborates with talents such as Timothée Chalamet, Whitney Peak, and Jennie, successfully balancing classic luxury with contemporary cultural relevance.

For Christmas campaigns, Chanel emphasizes heritage celebration and iconicity. Campaigns such as "Timeless Icon" focus on the myth and legacy of Chanel N°5, while limited-edition packaging with gold details and minimalist aesthetics reinforces the idea of refined luxury.

Chanel competes with Dolce & Gabbana Beauty through emotional prestige, iconic fragrances, and a highly recognizable visual identity rooted in elegance rather than extravagance.

GUCCI

Beauty

Gucci positions itself as an eccentric and creative pioneer within luxury beauty. The brand combines vintage-inspired aesthetics, inclusivity, and unconventional beauty standards, creating a playful yet fashion-forward identity strongly connected to younger audiences.

Its key products include Flora Gorgeous Gardenia, Gucci Guilty, and Rouge à Lèvres Mat. Gucci uses fragrance and makeup as extensions of its broader fashion identity, reinforcing emotional storytelling and individuality.

Gucci Beauty's communication is deeply connected to creative freedom and self-expression. The brand collaborates with figures such as Hanni, Miley Cyrus, and Dani Miller, while also exploring metaverse activations, nano-influencer marketing, and digital experimentation.

During the Holiday Season, Gucci adopts a nostalgic yet contemporary approach through campaigns like "Gucci Beauty Wishes." The brand creates retro-inspired gift boxes, dreamy visual campaigns, and highly aesthetic packaging designed to appeal strongly to Gen Z consumers and social media culture.

Gucci represents one of the closest competitors to Dolce & Gabbana Beauty because both brands share strong Mediterranean storytelling, bold aesthetics, and fashion-driven fragrance positioning.

ARMANI

Beauty

Armani is positioned around the concept of “quiet luxury,” emphasizing timeless elegance, refinement, and natural perfection. Compared to more extravagant competitors, Armani Beauty communicates sophistication through minimalism and technical excellence.

Its hero products include Luminous Silk Foundation, Acqua di Giò, Sì, and Crema Nera. The brand has a broad fragrance portfolio and performs particularly well in male gifting and luxury Christmas coffrets.

Armani Beauty collaborates with personalities such as Sydney Sweeney, Regé-Jean Page, and Sadie Sink, promoting a more natural and refined vision of beauty. Its communication frequently focuses on effortless elegance and “no-makeup makeup” aesthetics.

During Christmas, Armani Beauty emphasizes sophisticated gifting through velvet red and gold coffrets, luxurious textures, and campaigns centered around Italian refinement and technical product quality.

Armani competes with Dolce & Gabbana Beauty through Italian elegance and premium lifestyle positioning, but with a more understated and minimalist approach.

TOM FORD

Beauty

Tom Ford operates within the niche-luxury segment, positioning itself around sensuality, provocation, and cinematic glamour. The brand appeals to consumers seeking exclusivity, boldness, and ultra-premium fragrances.

Its most iconic products include Black Orchid, Oud Wood, Lost Cherry, Soleil Neige, and Lip Color. Fragrance is positioned as a luxury statement and a highly desirable gifting object.

Tom Ford Beauty communicates through provocative and visually intense campaigns featuring celebrities such as Hyun Bin, Gong Yoo, and Gigi Hadid. The visual language is cinematic, dark, sensual, and highly aspirational.

During Christmas, the brand focuses on ultra-premium gift sets such as Private Blend collections presented in architectural black-and-gold packaging. The gifting strategy targets high-spending luxury consumers looking for niche and statement fragrances.

Tom Ford represents a niche-luxury challenger to Dolce & Gabbana Beauty, particularly in the high-end fragrance category.

VALENTINO

Beauty

Valentino combines couture heritage with urban culture, positioning itself as a youthful and energetic luxury brand strongly connected to Gen Z audiences.

Its most important products include Born in Roma, Voce Viva, and Rosso Valentino. Born in Roma in particular has become a major fragrance success and a strong Christmas gifting performer.

Valentino Beauty promotes the concept of “Couture for All,” blending luxury fashion codes with inclusivity, nightlife culture, and urban aesthetics. The brand collaborates with figures such as Florence Pugh and Adut Akech.

Its communication strategy strongly relies on music, social media culture, and TikTok-friendly formats such as GRWM (“Get Ready With Me”) content. During the Holiday Season, campaigns like “Party Studio 54” focus on celebration, inclusivity, and vibrant emotional storytelling.

Valentino is one of Dolce & Gabbana Beauty’s closest competitors because both brands combine Italian identity, fashion storytelling, and strong emotional communication targeted toward younger luxury consumers.

VERSACE

Beauty

Versace represents bold luxury, glamour, and vibrant sensuality deeply connected to the iconic aesthetic of Donatella Versace.

Its leading fragrance pillars include Eros, Dylan Blue, and Bright Crystal. Versace fragrances are expressive, highly recognizable, and strongly linked to Mediterranean sensuality.

The brand communicates through visually impactful campaigns featuring personalities such as Dua Lipa, Iris Law, and Cillian Murphy. Social communication is based on bold colors, viral content, and strong TikTok visibility.

Versace directly overlaps with Dolce & Gabbana Beauty through Mediterranean DNA, sensuality, and expressive luxury aesthetics, making it one of the most immediate competitive references within fashion-led fragrance beauty.

PRADA

Beauty

Prada positions itself around intellectual luxury and futuristic sophistication. The brand combines minimalism with technological innovation, targeting modern luxury consumers interested in niche and conceptual beauty.

Its key products include Paradoxe, Luna Rossa, and Prada Augmented Skin. Prada fragrances appeal particularly to fragrance connoisseurs and minimalist luxury consumers.

The brand collaborates with talents such as Emma Watson, Hunter Schafer, and Troye Sivan, reinforcing its positioning around progressive culture and augmented beauty.

Prada represents a more intellectual and niche-oriented competitor compared to Dolce & Gabbana Beauty, particularly within premium fragrance innovation.

YSL

Beauty

Yves Saint Laurent combines Parisian sophistication with rebellious glamour. The brand positions itself around freedom, confidence, nightlife culture, and rock-inspired luxury.

Its iconic products include Libre, Y, Touche Éclat, and Lash Clash. These products are highly successful among Millennials and younger luxury consumers due to their strong visual identity and emotional appeal.

YSL Beauty collaborates with celebrities such as Dua Lipa, Austin Butler, and Lenny Kravitz, linking beauty with music, nightlife, and self-expression.

The brand's communication focuses on audacity, sensuality, and party culture, making it particularly attractive for younger audiences seeking expressive luxury products.

YSL competes with Dolce & Gabbana Beauty through emotional storytelling, nightlife aesthetics, and fashion-driven fragrance desirability.

FRAGRANCE STRATEGY

DISTRIBUTION STRATEGY

Dolce & Gabbana follows a selective and controlled distribution strategy, typical of the luxury sector, with a strong focus on preserving brand experience, premium positioning, and customer perception.

Since 2023, with the creation of Dolce & Gabbana Beauty, the brand has internalized production, sales, and distribution, gaining greater control over pricing, brand image, and customer experience. This marks a key strategic shift: fragrances are no longer just a licensing category, but a direct strategic lever for the brand.

The distribution model is built around different channels, each with a specific strategic function.

1. Physical Retail as the Core Channel

Physical retail remains the dominant channel in the fragrance category because customers need to experience the scent before purchasing. Dolce & Gabbana perfumes are distributed through mono-brand boutiques, beauty-dedicated flagship stores, premium department stores such as Sephora, Harrods and Rinascente, and selected beauty retailers.

This channel enables a full sensory experience, which is essential for fragrances. It also supports immersive brand storytelling and drives high conversion, especially because trial often leads directly to purchase. For Dolce & Gabbana, physical retail is therefore not only a selling point, but also a space where the brand can communicate its identity, packaging, and

2. Selective Wholesale

Selective wholesale allows Dolce & Gabbana to expand its reach while maintaining a premium positioning. The brand distributes through premium department stores and luxury retailers, while keeping strong control over visual merchandising and pricing.

The function of this channel is to make the products more accessible to luxury beauty consumers without compromising brand image. It increases visibility and commercial reach, but within controlled and carefully selected retail environments.

3. E-commerce and Digital

E-commerce and digital channels are becoming increasingly relevant, especially after Covid and especially for repeat purchases of already known products. Dolce & Gabbana uses its official website, online beauty retailers such as Lookfantastic, and selected marketplaces.

The role of digital is strategic but complementary. It supports awareness, engagement, CRM, personalization, and replenishment purchases. However, digital does not replace physical product testing, which remains essential in the fragrance category. Its future direction is therefore linked to phygital experiences, combining digital storytelling with in-store experience.

4. Travel Retail

Travel retail is a highly strategic channel for Dolce & Gabbana perfumes. The brand is present in airport duty-free stores and dedicated pop-ups, such as “The One” experiences.

This channel targets high-spending international travellers, encourages impulse buying and gifting, and provides strong global visibility. Travel retail is one of the most high-performing channels in the fragrance category because it combines premium visibility, emotional purchase context, and immediate product accessibility.

5. Pop-up Stores and Temporary Activations

Pop-up stores and temporary activations strengthen Dolce & Gabbana’s storytelling and experiential positioning. These include immersive installations and product launch events.

Their function is to generate hype, test new markets, and create memorable brand moments. For fragrance launches, pop-ups are especially relevant because they allow the brand to combine scent discovery, visual identity, and emotional engagement in a temporary but high-impact environment.

CHANNEL ROLE BY OCCASION

Dolce & Gabbana’s fragrance distribution strategy changes according to the purchasing occasion. Different channels are strategically aligned with specific consumer behaviours, emotional contexts, and purchasing objectives. This allows the brand to maximize visibility, storytelling, conversion, and customer engagement while maintaining a coherent luxury positioning.

Self-Purchase: E-commerce + Physical Stores

For self-purchasing occasions, Dolce & Gabbana mainly relies on e-commerce, mono-brand stores, and premium department stores. Physical retail remains essential because consumers often want to test the fragrance directly, while digital channels are increasingly important for repeat purchases and convenience.

This omnichannel approach combines sensory experience, personalization, convenience, and long-term customer loyalty.

“Fragrance is not only purchased -- it is discovered, experienced, and emotionally remembered”

Gifting Occasions: Department Stores + Travel Retail

During gifting periods such as Christmas and Valentine’s Day, Dolce & Gabbana prioritizes premium department stores and travel retail environments. These channels provide strong visibility, premium presentation, and impulse purchase opportunities.

Consumers are particularly attracted by limited-edition packaging, bundles, premium wrapping, and ready-to-gift solutions, which reinforce the emotional value of fragrance gifting.

New Fragrance Launches: Pop-ups + Flagship Stores

For new fragrance launches, Dolce & Gabbana focuses on flagship boutiques and immersive pop-up activations. The objective is not only selling, but also storytelling, hype generation, and emotional engagement.

These channels reinforce exclusivity, desirability, and brand immersion while transforming fragrance discovery into a luxury experience.

Impulse Purchasing: Travel Retail

Travel retail plays a major role in impulse fragrance purchasing. Airport duty-free environments encourage spontaneous luxury purchases by combining emotional engagement, accessibility, and high visibility. Mini formats, duo packs, and travel-exclusive bundles are particularly effective in this context.

PHYSICAL VS DIGITAL

Dolce & Gabbana’s fragrance strategy is based on an omnichannel luxury ecosystem where physical and digital channels work together rather than competing with each other.

Although digital channels are becoming increasingly important, physical retail remains central within the fragrance category because perfumes require:

- sensory interaction
- emotional immersion
- product testing

For this reason, Dolce & Gabbana’s strategy is increasingly evolving toward a phygital approach, where digital storytelling enhances the in-store luxury experience.

Physical Retail -> Dominant Channel

Physical retail remains the dominant channel in the fragrance category.

Dolce & Gabbana distributes fragrances through: mono-brand boutiques, flagship stores, department stores, selected beauty retailers.

The physical environment plays a fundamental strategic role because it enables: scent discovery, sensory engagement, emotional storytelling, immersive luxury experiences.

Customers often need to test the fragrance directly before purchasing, making physical interaction essential for conversion.

Physical retail is also particularly important for: new fragrance launches, premium gifting, experiential campaigns, high-end customer service

In-store environments reinforce Dolce & Gabbana’s luxury identity through: visual merchandising, premium packaging, beauty consultants, emotional atmosphere.

Digital -> Strategically Growing

Digital channels are becoming increasingly relevant, especially after Covid and especially for: repeat purchases, CRM, awareness, engagement, personalization. Dolce & Gabbana uses: its official website, online beauty retailers, selected marketplaces.

Digital channels are especially effective for consumers who already know the fragrance and simply want: convenience, replenishment, fast purchasing.

Digital also allows the brand to strengthen: customer data collection, personalized communication, loyalty strategies, online storytelling.

Social media and digital campaigns are particularly important for: younger consumers, influencer-driven purchasing, product discovery, seasonal launches.

The Rise of Phygital Luxury

The future direction of Dolce & Gabbana Beauty is increasingly linked to phygital experiences, where: digital storytelling, social engagement, online personalization are integrated with: physical testing, immersive retail, sensory discovery. Rather than replacing physical retail, digital enhances and supports the customer journey before, during, and after the in-store experience.

For example: social media creates desire and awareness, physical retail enables sensory validation, e-commerce supports replenishment and loyalty.

This integrated ecosystem allows Dolce & Gabbana to maintain a luxury experience while adapting to evolving habits.

fragrance as a luxury
entry point

FORMATS, PRICING & OFFERING

The overall strategy demonstrates how fragrances function not only as beauty products, but also as an accessible entry point into the Dolce & Gabbana universe. Through carefully structured pricing, differentiated formats, and controlled accessibility, the brand is able to expand its customer base while preserving prestige and exclusivity.

Fragrance Concentration Strategy

One of the key strategic aspects of the offering is the presence of different fragrance concentrations. Dolce & Gabbana typically develops its fragrances in:

- Eau de Toilette (EDT)
- Eau de Parfum (EDP)
- Parfum versions

These formats allow the brand to address different consumer preferences in terms of intensity, longevity, and price sensitivity.

The pricing structure generally increases according to concentration level, with Parfum representing the most premium and expensive version due to its higher oil concentration and more luxurious positioning. This strategy enables Dolce & Gabbana to create a hierarchical luxury ladder within the same fragrance line, increasing perceived sophistication while offering multiple accessibility levels.

Size Architecture & Format Strategy

Another important strategic element is the variation in bottle sizes. Dolce & Gabbana commonly offers fragrances in:

- 30ml
- 50ml
- 100ml formats

The 30ml size functions as an entry-level product, lowering the barrier to purchase and allowing younger or first-time luxury consumers to access the brand at a more affordable price point.

The 50ml format represents the core market offering and is often perceived as the most balanced option in terms of practicality and value perception.

The 100ml size is positioned as the premium value format, encouraging trade-up behaviour by offering a lower price per millilitre and reinforcing long-term usage perception.

Travel sizes and mini formats, usually ranging from 10ml to 20ml, are also strategically important. These smaller formats:

- facilitate product trial
- support travel convenience
- create lower entry prices
- align with on-the-go beauty consumption habits

They are particularly relevant for younger consumers, travel retail environments, and impulse purchasing behaviour.

Pricing Architecture

From a pricing perspective, Dolce & Gabbana follows a typical accessible luxury pricing ladder.

Entry-level products generally range from approximately €60 to €80, mid-range products from around €90 to €120, while premium formats and higher concentrations can exceed €130–€160.

Ultra-luxury editions can surpass €320.

This structure reflects the strategic role fragrances play within the Dolce & Gabbana ecosystem: fragrances operate as an accessible entry point into the brand universe while still maintaining premium perception.

The majority of products are intentionally clustered within the €100–€130 range. This allows Dolce & Gabbana to maximize sales volume while preserving a strong luxury image. Consumers perceive the fragrances as premium and aspirational, yet still attainable compared to other luxury categories such as fashion or jewellery.

Gift Sets & Bundles Strategy

Gift sets and bundles represent a central category within Dolce & Gabbana's fragrance business, especially during key commercial periods such as Christmas, Valentine's Day, and travel retail campaigns.

These sets often combine fragrances with complementary products such as:

- body lotions
- shower gels
- mini-size versions
- makeup products, particularly within the Devotion line

In many cases, the brand introduces limited-edition packaging specifically designed for seasonal gifting periods.

Gift sets serve several strategic functions:

- increase average basket value
- enhance perceived value
- encourage gifting purchases
- strengthen brand storytelling through premium packaging

From a pricing perspective, gift sets are usually positioned slightly above the price of a single fragrance, while offering

Gift Sets & Bundles

consumers a stronger perception of convenience and savings.

For example, a 100ml fragrance priced around €140 may be sold in a gift set for approximately €160–€180, encouraging consumers to spend more while perceiving additional value.

Strategic Role of Bundles

The bundle strategy changes according to the purchasing occasion.

During Christmas, Dolce & Gabbana focuses on larger three-piece sets, where gifting and premium packaging become central to the consumer experience.

In travel retail, the brand emphasizes duo formats and perfume-plus-mini-size combinations, encouraging immediate and impulse purchases.

Entry-level gifting is often associated with more accessible lines such as Light Blue, while premium gifting is concentrated around collections such as The One and Devotion.

In contrast, the ultra-luxury Velvet Collection rarely includes bundles. This helps preserve:

- exclusivity
 - rarity
 - ultra-premium positioning
- Overall, gift sets play a major strategic role because they:
- drive strong seasonal sales, especially during Q4
 - reinforce luxury storytelling
 - increase perceived value
 - maintain controlled accessibility without diluting prestige.

Christmas edition

Christmas gifting behaviors in the luxury beauty category

The Christmas season represents the most important sales period for luxury beauty, particularly for fragrance, which traditionally functions as one of the most culturally accepted luxury gifts. Unlike other luxury sectors, luxury beauty combines emotional symbolism, accessibility, and ritualised gifting, making it a key entry point into luxury brands. Christmas purchases within this category are driven by three primary forces:

- Emotional expression through gifting
- Accessible luxury indulgence
- Ritualised seasonal consumption

Within this context, several distinct consumer profiles emerge.

Emotional Drivers

For all segments, D&G Beauty products represent a symbol of care and prestige. The emotional factor is crucial: customers want to feel special and part of an aspirational lifestyle. Personal gratification (self-indulgence) and the desire to impress others are common drivers. Perceived value and quality fuel the purchasing decision: consumers seek the feeling of exclusivity associated with a niche brand that maintains high standards.

Purchase Occasions

Sales are concentrated around key gifting moments (holidays, birthdays, anniversaries), but also around self-reward occasions (new product launches, exclusive promotions, online sales). Thanks to the direct model of the new D&G Beauty division, touchpoints include mono-brand boutiques, dedicated e-commerce platforms, and experiential temporary stores. In addition, digital initiatives (e.g. social campaigns and local festivities) amplify the appeal of products throughout the year. In general, luxury shopping is influenced by social events (fashion weeks, exclusive parties) where the brand's media presence is highly visible.

Barriers

Possible barriers include the high price point typical of the luxury segment, which requires the cost to be justified through clear benefits (e.g. unique formulas and premium packaging). Demanding consumers expect transparency and authenticity; any mismatch between the brand image and product performance can discourage buyers. During periods of economic uncertainty, some consumers may postpone discretionary purchases, focusing instead on core products (such as iconic fragrances) and evaluating each new launch more carefully. To mitigate this, D&G must demonstrate real value (visible skin benefits, satisfying sensory experiences) in order to overcome skepticism.

Main occasions for buying a perfume

Perfume is bought mainly for:

- Romantic gifting
- Family gifting
- Corporate gifting
- Self-gifting / reward
- Seasonal rituals (Christmas, holidays)

Emerging Trends in Luxury Beauty Christmas Shopping

1. Gift Sets Dominate Sales

During the Christmas season, fragrance gift sets represent a significant share of luxury beauty sales. Consumers perceive these sets as offering greater value thanks to the combination of multiple products within a single purchase. In addition to being practical gifting solutions, they also enhance the overall luxury experience through coordinated packaging and curated product selections.

2. Festive Packaging as a Luxury Signal

Limited-edition Christmas packaging has become a key element in increasing product desirability and gifting appeal. Luxury brands use festive designs, exclusive decorations, and collectible details to transform beauty products into emotional and visually impactful gifts. Packaging therefore becomes part of the luxury experience itself, reinforcing exclusivity and seasonal storytelling.

3. Accessible Luxury Growth

Luxury beauty continues to grow as an accessible entry point into the world of prestigious brands. Compared to categories such as fashion or jewellery, beauty products allow consumers to experience luxury at a more approachable price point while still maintaining a strong sense of exclusivity, status, and emotional gratification.

4. Digital Influence

Consumers increasingly discover Christmas gifting ideas through digital channels. Social media platforms, beauty influencers, and online gift guides play a central role in shaping consumer preferences and purchase decisions during the festive season. Digital content helps brands create emotional engagement, increase visibility, and inspire aspirational gifting behaviors.

5. Experiential Retail

Luxury beauty brands are investing more heavily in experiential retail strategies during Christmas. These include immersive store displays, personalized fragrance consultations, and festive pop-up experiences designed to strengthen emotional connection and make the shopping journey more memorable. The in-store experience becomes a fundamental part of the brand's storytelling and luxury positioning.

Where Wonder Begins

CONTINENT PREFERENCES

Europe

In the European market, the concept of a “strong” fragrance is associated with balance and refinement rather than excessive projection. Consumers generally prefer perfumes that are elegant, noticeable, and sophisticated without becoming overpowering. Fragrances are expected to adapt well to daily wear, office environments, and close social settings, where controlled intensity is considered more desirable than extreme performance.

For Dolce & Gabbana Beauty, fragrances such as Light Blue, The One, and Pour Homme perform particularly well in this region because they combine persistence with a more refined and wearable character. European consumers often associate luxury with subtle sophistication, and fragrances with overly aggressive projection may sometimes be perceived as intrusive.

Overall, Europe tends to favor perfumes that are noticeable yet polite, reflecting a more understated and elegant approach to luxury fragrance consumption.

Middle East

The Middle Eastern market represents the strongest demand globally for highly intense and long-lasting fragrances. In this region, the concept of a “strong” perfume is closely linked to high projection, exceptional longevity, and deep, sensual compositions built around notes such as oud, amber, leather, and resins.

Dolce & Gabbana Beauty fragrances such as Velvet Desert Oud, Velvet Amber Sun, and Velvet Exotic Leather are particularly aligned with these preferences because they offer rich olfactory depth and powerful scent trails.

This preference is deeply rooted in cultural habits and traditions. Fragrance is often considered a symbol of prestige, identity, and personal presence, while traditional layering rituals further increase the demand for intense and long-lasting scents. Climatic conditions also influence these preferences, as stronger fragrances tend to perform better in warmer environments.

As a result, the Middle East remains one of the most important and receptive markets for ultra-intense luxury perfumery.

Asia

In many Asian markets, consumers generally prefer fragrances with lighter and cleaner projection. Rather than bold intensity, the idea of a “strong” perfume is associated with freshness, transparency, and modern elegance. Fragrances are often expected to remain close to the skin and avoid becoming invasive or overwhelming.

For Dolce & Gabbana Beauty, fragrances such as Light Blue, Dolce, and L’Imperatrice are particularly suitable for this market due to their fresh, delicate, and clean olfactory profiles.

These preferences are influenced by both cultural and social factors. In many Asian countries, overpowering scents may be considered inappropriate in crowded urban environments or close social interactions. Consumers therefore tend to prioritize cleanliness, freshness, and subtle sophistication over strong projection.

Overall, Asian consumers generally favor soft strength rather than power-driven fragrances.

Americas

In the American market, fragrance preferences are often more expressive and personality-driven. Consumers tend to appreciate perfumes with noticeable projection, strong identity, and a bold emotional presence. Here, fragrance is frequently connected to confidence, individuality, and self-expression.

Dolce & Gabbana Beauty fragrances such as K, The One, and Devotion perform strongly because they combine warmth, sensuality, and recognizability. These fragrances align well with a market that values statement-making scents capable of leaving a memorable impression.

Compared to Europe, consumers in the Americas generally show a higher acceptance of stronger projection and more expressive olfactory signatures. In addition, the strong gifting culture during the Holiday Season further supports the success of impactful and recognizable fragrances.

Overall, the American market tends to favor fragrances that are both emotionally engaging and immediately noticeable.

The One for Men – Warm, spicy classic; strong choice for evening and special occasions.

Intenso – Slightly deeper, refined woody scent popular in transitional seasons.

Velvet Desert Oud (Men) – Oud-rich, long-lasting pick (popular globally).

Light Blue Pour Homme / Light Blue Intense – Fresh, everyday traffic pick (especially in warmer climates).

Pour Homme – Classic woody-aromatic staple.

Which Perfumes Buyers Prefer by Context...

Holiday & Gifting Purchases

Light Blue (women & men) — safe and highly recognizable gift choice

The Only One — special occasion / evening gift

K by Dolce & Gabbana — popular for men's gifting

Velvet Desert Oud — luxury gift for premium segments

(Best sellers during peak seasons often include these due to recognisability and strong brand cues.)

Self-Purchase / Fashion-Forward Buyers

Velvet Blue Musk & Velvet Exotic Leather — trendy and expressive (Gen Z & young Millennials)

Q by Dolce & Gabbana — youthful and fashion-forward choice

L'Impératrice / Dolce Peony — seasonal favorites for daily wear

Takeaways

- Light Blue remains the iconic fragrance with broad global appeal, frequently ranking top in sales and searches.

- Warm, deeper scents like The Only One and Velvet Desert Oud are often chosen for evening wear and seasonal gifting.

- Men's fragrance buyers tend to lean on K by Dolce & Gabbana, The One for Men, and Light Blue Pour Homme as their go-to purchases.

- Younger consumers often buy fruitier or more expressive lines (e.g., Q, L'Impératrice, Velvet Blue Musk), reflecting trends towards bold and shareable scents.

CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR DRIVER

Across all profiles, three macro-drivers dominate:

1. Emotional Intensity

Christmas heightens emotional spending. Even rational consumers exhibit impulse behaviour.

2. Time Pressure

Deadlines compress decision-making. As December advances:

- Rational comparison declines
- Convenience and availability become decisive

3. Social Signalling

Gifting acts as communication:

- Affection
- Status
- Belonging
- Values

Snow globe

At the heart of our Christmas narrative shines the Devotion Heart Snow Globe. It's not just an object, but a symbol, a miniature Devotion heart enclosed in a shimmering world of snow. It's a small universe of magic, a tangible reminder of the devotion D&G infuses into every creation.

Gift set

Imagine receiving a gift where the packaging itself already feels like part of the luxury experience. Each Dolce & Gabbana Beauty Christmas gift set is wrapped in Sicilian majolica-inspired packaging, reinterpreted through festive motifs such as holly, stylized stars, and snowflakes on vibrant Mediterranean hues. More than simple packaging, these collectible gift boxes elevate fragrance sets containing multiple perfumes and beauty products into precious holiday treasures. Glossy and matte textures, together with refined gold foil details, transform the unboxing into an emotional and immersive ritual that celebrates Italian craftsmanship, exclusivity, and festive wonder — while also embracing a more conscious and sustainable approach to luxury gifting.

This year, the magic of Christmas unfolds in an exclusive set of four glass Christmas baubles, each a small masterpiece. At their heart, a golden Devotion heart, a symbol of love and passion, is finely adorned with leather details and sparkling rhinestones, catching the light and the eye. These precious decorations are nestled in an elegant white box, simple in its purity, which enhances their beauty and makes them a perfect gift. They are not mere ornaments, but an ode to craftsmanship and discreet luxury, designed to embellish the Christmas tree and become a cherished keepsake, a tangible reminder of the devotion D&G infuses into every creation.

outside

Every day of December transforms into a small celebration with our Advent Calendar. It's a box of secrets, a treasure chest of 24 D&G Beauty surprises, where each window reveals a fragment of beauty: iconic mini-fragrances like Light Blue, The One, and Devotion, limited edition lipsticks, mini-mascaras, precious serum and cream samples, and even a charming Devotion charm. Its exterior design, embellished with the festive majolica theme, makes it a coveted object, a daily journey of discovery that culminates in the joy of Christmas, an experience to collect and cherish

FLAGSHIP STORES AND D&G BOUTIQUES

Role: D&G monobrand stores will be the beating heart of the Christmas experience. They will serve as immersive brand showcases, offering a festive atmosphere and impeccable customer service.

Visual Merchandising: Special installations featuring the Christmas majolica theme and the white-red-gold palette will transform the stores into "retail theatres." This includes exterior decorations, interactive window displays, and interior setups that narrate the campaign's story.

Exclusive Services:

- Personalized Engraving: Dedicated stations with artisans or laser machines for immediate bottle engraving.
- Beauty Consultations: Personalized sessions with make-up artists and fragrance experts to guide the perfect gift selection.
- Luxury Gift Wrapping: Premium wrapping service with customized D&G paper, ribbons, and seals.
- In-Store Events: Organizing exclusive events for VIP clients, such as Christmas collection presentations, make-up workshops, or Sicilian-themed aperitifs.

—> AESTHETIC= Monobrand boutiques feature dedicated sections for the Devotion line and monumental Advent Calendar displays. White/red majolica walls reinforce the brand's Sicilian identity.

CORNERS IN LUXURY DEPARTMENT STORES

Role: Strategic collaborations with high-end department stores (e.g., Harrods, Galeries Lafayette, Saks Fifth Avenue, Bloomingdale's, La Rinascente) to create dedicated and highly immersive D&G Beauty corners.

Aesthetics: These spaces will replicate the aesthetics and atmosphere of the flagship stores, ensuring brand experience consistency. They will feature interactive displays and dedicated personalization areas.

Benefits: Reaching a broader audience of luxury shoppers who frequent these department stores, leveraging their reputation and foot traffic.

—> AESTHETIC= The Harrods corner prominently features the Beauty Advent Calendar, a key element for self-gifting. The open gift box structure in white and gold creates an immediate visual impact without the use of black

boutiques

PLACE

STRATEGIC TRAVEL RETAIL

Role: Strategic presence in international airports and luxury duty-free areas (e.g., Dubai International, Heathrow, JFK, Milan Malpensa). These locations intercept an international audience of travelers with high purchasing power, often looking for prestigious gifts.

Offering: Exclusive products for travel retail, compact gift sets, and rapid engraving services for last-minute purchases. Eye-catching displays that capture travelers' attention.

Benefits: Maximizing gifting opportunities for a global audience and reinforcing brand visibility in international luxury contexts.

travel retail

—> AESTHETIC = The airport pop-up integrates the 'Snow Globe' with the golden Devotion heart, as suggested for PR activations. It is a visual focal point that combines emotional storytelling and iconic products.

DEDICATED E-COMMERCE

(dolcegabbana.com/beauty)

Role: The official e-commerce platform will be enhanced for the Christmas period, offering a seamless, intuitive, and luxurious online shopping experience that mirrors the exclusivity of the physical store.

Specific Features:

Gift Guides: Dedicated sections with gift suggestions for different price ranges and recipient types.

Virtual Personalization: An online tool to visualize the engraving on the bottle before purchase.

Exclusive Christmas Packaging: Premium gift wrapping option with direct delivery to the recipient.

Dedicated Customer Service: Chatbots and phone support for personalized advice and purchase assistance.

Optimization: The platform will be optimized for mobile browsing, fast loading times, and a simplified checkout process.

—> AESTHETIC= The website reflects the visual cleanliness of the strategy, using white as a base to highlight gold and red details. Focus on personalization (engraving) and majolica packaging.

e-commerce

POP-UP STORES AND EXPERIENTIAL EVENTS

Role: Organizing temporary pop-up stores in exclusive locations (e.g., luxury shopping malls, 5-star hotels, cultural events) and Christmas-themed art installations in key cities. These events aim to create buzz, generate engagement, and offer an immersive brand experience.

Example: A pop-up store shaped like a stylized Sicilian cart offering fragrance samples and engraving services, as suggested in the shortlist.

—> AESTHETIC= Used exclusively as a 'retail theatre' installation, the luxury Sicilian cart in white lacquered finish and golden inlays avoids a folkloric effect.

An explosion of red and white, adorned with sparkling lights and festive decorations, this cart is a beacon of joy in our pop-up stores. It's not just a display, but a piece of Sicily that comes to life, an irresistible attraction that invites passerby to stop, discover, and fall in love with D&G fragrances and beauty products. It's a complete sensory experience, a small Christmas market that smells of citrus and luxury, where tradition meets innovation, and every purchase becomes an unforgettable memory of a D&G Christmas

pop up store

FLAGSHIP BOUTIQUES Emotional core

Full sensory experience. Engraving service. Fragrance consultations. In-store festive installation with maiolica decor. VIP client evenings in early December. Converts discovery into loyalty.

DEPARTMENT STORES Volume + visibility

Harrods, Rinascente, Sephora. Dedicated festive gondola with gift sets at forefront. "Top Christmas Gifts" display. Beauty advisor trained on gift guide. High foot traffic reaches prestige gifters and convenience shoppers.

TRAVEL RETAIL Impulse + global reach

Pop-up discovery bars at key airports. Exclusive travel sets not available elsewhere. Targets high-spending international travellers. Amplifies global visibility at premium moments of transition and gifting intent.

E-COMMERCE (D&G.COM) Replenishment + CRM

Gift set builder with personalisation option. Countdown to Christmas delivery cut-off. CRM-triggered recommendations based on past purchases. Same-day delivery messaging for convenience shoppers in final week.

PRICE

Dolce & Gabbana's Christmas pricing strategy is designed to balance accessibility, gifting desirability, and luxury exclusivity across different product categories.

The pricing architecture creates multiple entry points into the Dolce & Gabbana universe while maintaining a strong premium perception through limited editions, seasonal packaging, and collectible products.

GIFT SETS

Gift sets are positioned within the €140–200 range in order to balance premium perception with gifting accessibility.

They are particularly effective during the holiday season because consumers perceive them as more valuable and luxurious compared to purchasing a single fragrance alone.

ADVENT CALENDAR

The Advent Calendar is positioned around €700, placing it within the ultra-premium beauty gifting segment, while also aligning with the growing demand for experiential and highly shareable luxury products, particularly among younger consumers and social-media-driven audiences.

CHRISTMAS ORNAMENTS

The Christmas ornaments, priced around €400, for a set of 4 extend Dolce & Gabbana's luxury positioning beyond beauty into lifestyle and decorative luxury. The high pricing strategy reinforces craftsmanship, exclusivity, and the artistic value associated with Dolce & Gabbana's visual identity and Italian heritage aesthetics.

PROMOTION

Wrapped in wonder...

Transform Christmas gifting into an immersive emotional ritual where fragrance becomes the symbolic expression of love, memory, devotion, and Italian festive beauty.

Rather than promoting products alone, the campaign positions Dolce & Gabbana Beauty as the creator of emotionally charged holiday experiences through storytelling, collectibility, personalization, and sensory immersion.

Early October — Awareness & Desire Seeding

The campaign begins with subtle emotional storytelling designed to introduce the festive universe before peak Christmas communication begins.

Key Activations:

- Launch of the cinematic teaser fashion film
- First reveal of the Christmas majolica aesthetic
- Window takeovers in flagship boutiques
- Travel retail teaser installations
- Social media teaser fragments and visual storytelling
- CRM anticipation campaign

Strategic Objective:

Create anticipation and emotional curiosity around the D&G Christmas universe while positioning gifting as a luxurious and emotionally meaningful gesture.

II

THE DESIRE

Late November to Christmas — Peak Emotional Consumption

This is the campaign's commercial climax, where gifting becomes a fully immersive luxury ritual.

Key Activations:

- Hero campaign amplification across all media
- Immersive holiday presence across premium department stores
- push of the personalized engraving services
- Premium gift-wrapping services
- High-impact festive retail installations

Strategic Objective:

Maximize emotional conversion and gifting desirability while reinforcing Dolce & Gabbana's premium positioning through experiential luxury.

IV

THE WHISPER

I

mid October to Mid-November — Discovery & Conversion

The second phase focuses on product discovery, collectibility, and digital engagement.

Key Activations:

- Advent Calendar launch
- Gift set release across retail and e-commerce
- Influencer seeding campaign
- TikTok and Instagram content rollout
- Digital gift guide distribution

Strategic Objective:

Transform desire into active engagement by leveraging social visibility, exclusivity, and collectible beauty experiences.

THE GIFT

III

Post-Christmas & January 6th — Loyalty & Self-Gifting

After Christmas, communication shifts toward self-indulgence and emotional reward.

Key Activations:

- "You Deserve This" campaign messaging
- Velvet Collection spotlight
- CRM re-engagement strategy
- Loyalty programme enrollment
- Personalized fragrance recommendations
- New Year self-gifting content

Strategic Objective:

Extend seasonal momentum beyond Christmas while converting gifting consumers into long-term brand loyalists.

PROMOTIONAL & COMMUNICATION TACTICS

Holiday Fashion Film

HERO ASSET

A cinematic fashion film set within an enchanted Christmas universe, where fragrance becomes the emotional thread connecting Italian heritage, magical realism, luxury family rituals, and festive storytelling. The film combines warm Mediterranean atmospheres with dreamlike visuals to transform gifting into an immersive emotional experience.

The campaign will be distributed across YouTube pre-roll, Instagram Reels, TikTok cut-downs, Connected TV, in-store screens, and department store digital installations.

Influencer & Creator Gifting

PR SEEDING

Dolce & Gabbana Beauty will develop a collectible set of luxury Christmas ornaments featuring the iconic Devotion Sacred Heart fragrance bottle. The exclusive set will be gifted to 80 selected beauty, fashion, and lifestyle creators globally, functioning both as a PR seeding initiative and as a collectible decorative luxury object.

No heavily scripted brief will be provided, allowing the visual impact and craftsmanship of the object itself to naturally generate organic unboxings, aesthetic content, gifting inspiration, and earned media visibility.

TikTok & Instagram Campaign

DIGITAL

The social media strategy is built around a social-first content ecosystem translating the emotional atmosphere of the campaign into short-form storytelling. Content will focus on fragrance rituals, family gifting moments, Sicilian festive traditions, ASMR unboxing sequences, gift-wrapping aesthetics, "Get Ready With Me" holiday editions, and fragrance layering storytelling.

The campaign will also include collaborations with mid-tier beauty and lifestyle creators in order to maintain authenticity while maximizing engagement among Gen Z and Millennial audiences.

Curated Gift Guide Distribution

DIGITAL & IN-STORE

Dolce & Gabbana Beauty will introduce a curated editorial gifting guide structured around emotional recipient categories such as "For Her," "For Him," "For Someone You Love," and "For Yourself."

The guide will be available digitally through the D&G Beauty e-commerce platform, through CRM and email marketing, and as printed luxury cards distributed in-store. Beauty advisors will also use the guide as a consultative selling tool during peak gifting periods to simplify product selection while reinforcing a premium luxury service experience.

DOLCE & GABBANA

We were inspired by Bosch's triptych "The Garden of Earthly Delights", particularly the central panel representing this paradisiacal world suspended between lust and sin, which led us to think of "Alice in Wonderland". The idea follows Alice during an ordinary moment in her everyday reality, when she suddenly perceives an irresistible perfume in the air and becomes completely captivated by it. Following this almost hypnotic scent trail, she discovers an enormous Christmas gift box, a reinterpretation of the rabbit hole, and, by stepping inside, she is transported into the Dolce & Gabbana world.

From that moment on, reality transforms into a surreal and magical universe filled with enchanted atmospheres, golden symbols, floating fragrances, and dreamlike scenarios. The mood is ethereal, regal, and cinematic, suspended between wonder, desire, and temptation, where perfume becomes the portal to a fantastical and sensory world.

The event

Private invitation-only evenings hosted inside the Dolce & Gabbana Beauty boutique at Harrods during early December.

For the occasion, the boutique is transformed into an immersive Christmas wonderland inspired by Alice in Wonderland, where fantasy, glamour and festive magic merge into a surreal Dolce & Gabbana universe.

Designed for VIP clients, beauty editors, influencers and top-spending customers, the experience invites guests into a theatrical and highly sensorial environment dominated by rich red, white and gold scenography, baroque decorations, oversized playing cards, enchanted mirrors and couture floral installations.

The experience includes:

- fragrance storytelling experiences
- live engraving and personalization
- Sicilian-inspired cocktails and Italian delicacies
- holiday fashion film screenings
- curated gifting consultations
- immersive photo moments and social media activations
- exclusive previews of limited-edition Christmas collections

More than a retail activation, the event becomes a strategic experiential luxury moment designed to strengthen:

- emotional engagement
- exclusivity perception
- client loyalty
- social media visibility
- high-value customer relationships during the festive season

Through immersive storytelling and elevated hospitality, Dolce & Gabbana transforms Christmas gifting into an emotional and memorable brand experience.
